STEERING COMMITTEE FORMED

Meeting Held on Juvenile Delinquency Problems Here

Officials from the county met at the Thursday evening, Sept. 6, for a discussion on juvenile delinquency problems. Representatives from the city, the Probate Judge, Justice of the Peace and police from the county and city were present. Patricia Hunter, Crawford County Juvenile Agent, presided over the meeting. She asked the assembly what had been done to curb juvenile delinquency.

A motion was offered by Chief Hatfield and supported by Officer Engle that a citizens committee be formed to act as a court of no record. This committee would be composed of men and/or women—two from the city, county, schools and churches and one citizen at large, making a nine-panel board that would meet once a month to hear the cases of delinquency. The only function of this group would be to try and arrive at home solutions to the problems, rather than going to a court of record.

This motion was passed unanimously by the group. A steering committee was formed to organize this committee and to work out by-laws and to confer with the Prosecuting Attorney on the legality of such an organization. Named to this steering committee were: Patricia Hunter, Paul Thomson, Elmer Fenton and Bernard Fowler.

Fred Bear Museum has Opening On Labor Day Weekend

Labor Day weekend saw the opening of the Fred Bear Museum, the newest attraction at Bear Mountain, Grayling's year-round recreation area.

The museum is housed in a handsome stone-faced building forty-five by one hundred and sixty feet which contains all of Mr. Bear's trophies taken with the bow and arrow through the years, as well as one of the largest private collections of archery artifacts and related items gathered from all over the world.

There are bronze arrowheads dating from 500 B.C., a three-hundred-year-old dagger presented to Mr. Bear by the Maharajah of Bundi after they had finished a tiger hunt together, and a turquoise and solid silver armguard from ancient Mexico, to mention just a few.

Among the full mounts of animals in the museum is a nine-foot Kodiak bear from Alaska which is a favorite background for photographers posing members of their families between the enormous paws. There are also the head, trunk and tusks of an elephant roaring out from a back wall, a full sized polar bear and seal, a full mount of African Cape Buffalo and lion in battle and an Indian tiger among the trophies.

One end of the building features a complete Archery Pro Shop and gift department. A small second story theater, seating about sixty people, where Mr. Bear's hunting films will be shown, is also in the planning.

Finishing details are going on steadily including descriptive labels for all exhibits. A formal opening for the Museum is scheduled for a later date after all work is completed. Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., seven days a week.

Soil Big Source of Water Pollution

By Willard Bossermen
County Extension
Natural Resource Agent

The greatest single source of water pollution in the United States is soil — out of place. Washed from gullies, farm fields, stream banks and construction sites. Nearly four billion tons of sediment annually is dumped into the streams and lakes, according to a Michigan State University soil and water conservationist.

Russell G. Hill, specialist with MSU's Cooperative Extension Service, and Executive Secretary of the State Soil Conservation Committee, points to a federal study as an example of the vast amounts of sediment clogging our waterways.

The U.S. Senate Committee on Water Resources reported that "rough estimates of the suspended solid loadings reading the nations streams from surface runoff show these (sediments) to be at least 700 times the loadings caused by sewage discharge," Hill relates.

Closer to home, a recent sedimentation study near Detroit showed that nearly 100 tons of soil per acre were annually flooding into streams from a trailer park development project.

Even closer to home, every time we have a real heavy rain the South Branch of the AuSable turns yellow. This yellowing is caused by small soil particles being eroded into the river. The soil from filling along the river, from road ends and construction sites.

Interference with the oxidation process of organic matter in streams is a direct result of sediment. Stopping the process can cause organic material to accumulate and rot by a different process, causing an obnoxious odor. Sediment causes erosion of pumping equipment, turbines and other structures. It blankets the nesting and spawning areas for fish.

Greater effort must be made to reduce sediment from construction. During the many months highways are under construction and subdivisions stand bare and unprotected, erosion dumps many tons of soil into bodies of water which permanently changes their character.

Recent research indicates sediment contains considerable phosphorus, which adds to the aging of water bodies. Hill says the prevention of pollution due to sedimentation is the responsibility of all who work with the soil.

Wakeley's Corner Store Changes Ownership

Wakeley's Corner Store located ten miles east of Grayling at the corner of the North Down River Road and Wakeley Bridge Road has been sold by its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Wakeley, to Jess Bennett Jr. and Jess Bennett Jr. The sale was completed the first part of August, but the new owners did not take over until the end of the month.

In 1930 A. J. Wakeley and the late Carl Parsons purchased the Earl Nelson gasoline station at 409 Cedar Street in Grayling and operated the business in partnership. After nine years there Junior sold his half interest to Fred Lamm and purchased the north half of Section 3, Township 26 North, Range 2 West, from Frank and Frieda Kuhn and built what has been known as Wakeley's Corner Store across the road from the former Feldhauser School. The store has been open 12 months a year since it was built. Junior has sold Standard Oil products ever since 1930, (37 years) or longer than anyone else in the county, he believes.

The new owners, the Jess Bennetts, Senior and Junior, from Utica, Michigan, have owned property and have been coming to Crawford County for 18 or 19 years, hunting and fishing. They plan to keep the store open, under the new name Wakeley Woods Corner Store, through deer season at least, and then do some remodeling during the winter months and also try to complete their home on Wakeley Bridge Road just south of the store. A new phone number has been issued for the store, which is 348-9456, the old number having been retained by Mr. and Mrs. Wakeley.

Major Colleges To Admit Kirtland Transfer Students

Application for re-accreditation of Kirtland Community College students by North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is in process. Lloyd H. Van Buskirk, President, stated that the process of accreditation normally takes several years but that during this interim period, in order to assure students attending Kirtland that their credits will be honored by the major colleges and universities, requests are made of these institutions to accept Kirtland students prior to North Central accreditation.

Letters have been received granting this acceptance of credits from sixteen Michigan colleges and universities. Included in this group of sixteen is the University of Michigan, Wayne State University, Michigan State University and Central Michigan University.

In this way, Kirtland students are assured accreditation and acceptance provided other requirements of the institutions are met. North Central Association has assured Kirtland College that it should have little difficulty in receiving accreditation provided the College follows through its plans and is able to accomplish its objectives as outlined to date.

Viking Gridders Working Hard In Two-a-Day Practice Sessions

The Vikings will have ten returning lettermen to build the 1967 squad around. With these ten, and players that saw action last year, and a good crop coming up from the undefeated JV squad last year, Grayling Vikings fans can look for an exciting season.

Dave Bailey, all-conference halfback last year, is expected to carry the running-load along with Paul King, Allen Lowe and

"Hard Core" Unemployed

Michigan's "hard core" unemployed in the Upper Peninsula were picked for a unique retraining-educational pilot program. Although job retraining has been conducted at many locations for quite some time, the UP project combined basic education and pre-vocational training with the teaching of only job skills.

A Federal program passed in 1964 provides funds for attacking hard core poverty. The Michigan Department of Social Services and Northern Michigan University, at Marquette, pooled their talents to provide a more flexible program, based on individual needs, than is normally found in retraining.

The 201 enrollees were first given thorough medical-dental examinations and underwent extensive counseling. Factors which become apparent—and which could affect the trainees' successfully completing courses—included organic problems, drinking habits, marital difficulties, low reading and mathematical competencies.

Trainees, housed in special quarters at Northern, received specific help on these individual problems. During this period social services staff visited homes, explained the program and asked cooperation and support from families.

Once a vacancy developed in the job training classes, a trainee was "promoted" from basic education to job skills. No class schedule was set; trainees graduated from classes as employment was found or when they entered a more highly-skilled course.

Programs planned for 10 week intervals actually averaged 11½ weeks. Maximums and minimums ran from one year to one day. Some men spent the entire period in the basic education program and increased general education levels. Others spent less time in classroom, but acquired skills in welding, wood-working, auto mechanics, and other fields.

At the end of the year's program, 94 of the 201 originally enrolled planned to continue their education or vocational training, 52 had or were promised employment, 27 were unemployed, 14 were in work-experience projects, eight were under medical care, six were in jail, unknown or dead.

Estimated trainee cost was $1.62 per hour, although exact figures will not be known until the books are officially closed. Results of the program were felt to merit its continuation for another year.

COLOR IT BLUE

Motorists traveling north on U.S. 27 near Mt. Pleasant or Clare and those northbound on U.S. 23, between Ann Arbor and Flint, will note blue markings for exit ramps.

Both projects are part of a "color-coding" experiment by the Michigan State Highway Department.

Previous tests in Minnesota and Florida prompted Michigan to add a third color code to the existing yellow and white-on-green interstate signs on its freeways.

High-speed freeway travel requires "glance" notification of interchange areas to permit advance positioning for exit maneuvers. The need is greater when exit ramps are approached from left lanes and look identical to the thru-way.

Erratic driving maneuvers were observed at such interchanges with drivers switching lanes two and three times before deciding whether to exit or continue on the freeway.

The erection of blue signs and edgemarkings at Mt. Pleasant and Clare reduced erratic maneuvers 38%. Data from 30,000 driver interviews is now being processed. The highway department has received many letters from motorists expressing favorable reaction to the coding system.

Results on U.S. 27 showed enough merit to justify a similar experiment on an extended length of freeway. In 1965 color coding was established on U.S. 23.

National adoption of the system could result if tests continue to show favorable results. The U.S. Bureau of Public Roads contributes 75% of test funds and watches the experiment closely.

Although there is considerable red tape involved, the Michigan system stands a good chance of becoming a standard for all interstate highways. Research data should be processed by next July.

Physical Exam Is Important

Football season is here again. All over the nation, American males are toasting and kicking and running with footballs, at the way from "eight-year-olds in the backyard to junior and senior high and college teams to the big bruisers of the professional leagues.

Football is a rough contact sport and inevitably will produce its full quota of bumps and bruises, strains and sprains, cuts and gashes. Most of these aren't serious and the lads concerned are back in the game shortly.

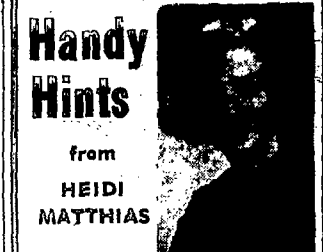

A thorough medical examination is highly important for boys preparing to go out for football to make certain that a "lad has no physical conditions that should be noted before he begins the rigorous training and hard knocks of the game.

Proper physical conditioning hardens the body and increases resistance to fatigue, thus helping to prevent injury. A minimum of three weeks of conditioning are recommended prior to the first game of the season. Coaches and physicians are alert to the fact that many injuries occur when the player is tiring and thus less alert.

Careful coaching enables the players to perform better and thus become less prone to injury. Good officiating makes for better games and also helps to protect players. Proper equipment and facilities also are important to reduce injuries. Good first aid procedures and medical care, with a physician readily available for practice drills and on the bench during games, are major factors in cutting down on serious injuries.

Precautions against the extreme heat of early season days also are important. Many coaches are now scheduling the hot weather workouts in early morning and late afternoon to avoid the heat of the day. The old rule against drinking water during drills and games has long since been proved invalid and dangerous. Water and salt is necessary to replace fluids lost through copious sweating.

If your boy is playing on an organized team, the chances are good that all of these safeguards are observed. If most of his playing is done on a vacant lot in the afternoons and on Saturdays, it becomes the parents' responsibility to see that the player has the benefit of the safeguarding principles.

Young children learn that money can buy things they want long before they know its actual value. However, if provided training in sound financial habits, your child will be better equipped to solve many complex problems of adult life, advocates Lucile Ketchum, home management specialist at Michigan State University.

Handling money baffles even some adults, so education in money management cannot start too early.

It isn't necessary to encourage a toddler to put his money in a piggy bank to teach thrift. Saving money means little to a preschooler. Instead, teach him to conserve the things he has so they will last longer. In learning to take care of his own clothes and toys, a child begins to understand some basic principles of thrift.

A pre-schooler experiences lending, borrowing and sharing all the time. Although no money changes hands, the underlying principles are the same.

Whatever the approach to teaching the child about money, Miss Ketchum reminds parents that attitudes, ideas and actions are passed from generation to generation. The child usually adopts his attitudes toward money from his parents, unconsciously for the most part. "Keep this in mind before you try to teach a youngster something you don't practice yourself."

And it is important to remember that each child should be handled as an individual, an independent personality. There cannot be a standard of rules for every child. Parents can only set a guideline for their children in handling money wisely.

Cooperative Extension Service Bulletin "The Money World of Your Pre-Schooler," gives more insight into youngsters' learning to handle money. It's available at no cost from the Cooperative Extension Service Office in the

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plans to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Little arms reach up. I stoop and lift the precious weight of baby son into my arms and smell his sweetness. Prayers of praise and thanks fill my heart. Cuddling him close, I remember the night of his birth when Mary and I were told that our baby could not live until daybreak. How we prayed in those early morning hours, holding hands and clinging fast to our belief that God in His goodness would spare our son. How grateful we were for the courage and strength God's love and nearness supplied. How glad we were for the Church where we had learned to love and worship the God who gives us all life.

Do you wonder that Sunday morning finds us both in church joyfully worshipping and giving thanks to God? Attend the church of your choice. Whatever your need, it stands ready to help.

Handy Hints
from
HEIDI MATTHIAS

Young children learn that money can buy things they want long before they know its actual value. However, if provided training in sound financial habits, your child will be better equipped to solve many complex problems of adult life, advocates Lucile Ketchum, home management specialist at Michigan State University.

Handling money baffles even some adults, so education in money management cannot start too early.

It isn't necessary to encourage a toddler to put his money in a piggy bank to teach thrift. Saving money means little to a preschooler. Instead, teach him to conserve the things he has so they will last longer. In learning to take care of his own clothes and toys, a child begins to understand some basic principles of thrift.

A pre-schooler experiences lending, borrowing and sharing all the time. Although no money changes hands, the underlying principles are the same.

Whatever the approach to teaching the child about money, Miss Ketchum reminds parents that attitudes, ideas and actions are passed from generation to generation. The child usually adopts his attitudes toward money from his parents, unconsciously for the most part. "Keep this in mind before you try to teach a youngster something you don't practice yourself."

And it is important to remember that each child should be handled as an individual, an independent personality. There cannot be a standard of rules for every child. Parents can only set a guideline for their children in handling money wisely.

Cooperative Extension Service Bulletin "The Money World of Your Pre-Schooler," gives more insight into youngsters' learning to handle money. It's available at no cost from the Cooperative Extension Service Office in the

Days of Autumn

It always seems that summer has barely started someone smells "fall in the air." Many people to see the leaves begin to turn. But, if they look around them when fall is in "full bloom," will find that they are in the midst of one of the most pleasant seasons of the year. While there is a new freshness in the air, there is also a new freshness in the mornings and falling leaves tell us winter is coming. We will look to such things as winterizing the yard up the premises. It is time to think of snow tires for the car and make sure a supply of antifreeze is standing handy.

Those who live in the southland may not need all these precautions, but the coming of winter means that shortly the winter vacation starts. In many southern communities, visitors will arrive in droves, and it is time to prepare them. All in all, the passing of the seasons adds a life to autumn begins this year on September 23. Those who have been smelling fall in the air are vindicated on that day. Autumn marks the beginning of the challenging and busy days of the season.

El Paso, Texas, News: "Any man who thinks he is going to be happy and prosperous by letting the government take care of him should take a close look at the American Indian."

New Calendar Features Michigan Travel Events

LANSING — Against a background of changing fall colors, Michigan communities will offer visitors an exciting variety of things to do and see during the autumn months, according to the Michigan Tourist Council.

Festivals, fairs and sportsmen's events dominate the listings in the September-December edition of the Michigan Calendar of Events, just released by the Council.

Highlighting early September events is the annual Mackinac Bridge Walk, from St. Ignace to Mackinaw City, on Labor Day — the only day of the year pedestrians are permitted on the bridge. Labor Day also marks the conclusion of the Michigan State Fair, Detroit.

Michigan is the site of the annual Glidden Tour of antique automobiles, beginning September 18 at Greenfield Village, Dearborn and touring the Grand Rapids and West Michigan area September 19-20.

In addition to many individual color tours offered throughout the state during late September and October, Grayling will celebrate its annual Carnival of Color and Belleaire will present the Autumn Color Festival, both October 6-8.

Many November events are centered around Michigan's deer hunting season beginning November 18, including the annual Buck Pole, Indian River, November 15; Red Coat Roundup, Grayling, November 17-19 and the Buck Pole Contest, Mancelona, November 19.

Couple Here Adopt Filipino Boy

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Rutledge, Star Route Box 422A, Grayling, Michigan 49738, have financially "adopted" Romeo Cristobal, an 8-year-old Filipino boy, through Foster Parents Plan, Inc., 352 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10010. The "adoption" is financial not legal and costs $15 a month for a minimum of one year. Foster Parents often continue supporting the same child until he graduates from school or reaches 16. If at any time the Foster Parent cannot continue the child is assigned to another Foster Parent. Once enrolled a child is assured of continuous care until he is capable of caring for himself. As soon as a Foster Parent makes his first payment he receives a photograph and case history of his child.

"King of the Hill" Dan Canfield of Grayling won his way back as "King of the Hill" in the weekly bowling matches at Cherven Lanes on Monday night. It was an all Grayling final as he defeated Pete Latusek in the final by a score of 200-128.

A change has been made due to Labor Day on Monday and the finals this week will be bowled on Friday, Sept. 8 at 9:00 P.M. with qualifying until 10:00 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 7. With the additional days of qualifying a larger turn-out is expected.

Finalists this past week were: Ed Cherven, Ben Garland, By Sisco of Roscommon, Ron Case, LeRoy Neal and Dan Canfield of Grayling and Jim Tyo of Prudenville.

Flu Season Ahead

"That time of year" isn't very far off — the winter season with its threats of serious flu outbreaks.

This year the Surgeon General of the U.S. Public Health Service, Dr. William H. Stewart, is rather emphatic about the danger. Flu cases may be expected in "substantial numbers," he warns.

Which flu bug is the bugaboo this time? Much of the trouble is likely to be caused by type A-2 according to Dr. Stewart. Fortunately, we the people aren't defenseless. An improved vaccine has been found effective against disease agent A-2, and promises better protection than any in the past.

Meanwhile, back at the Public Health Service, it is urgently suggested that those in need of flu immunization should take care of the matter right after October 1st if possible. A little time is required for the vaccine to take effect.

Who are the people that need immunization? PHS is specific about it: (a) those 45 years old or more, and particularly those over 65; (b) those who have a chronic illness; (c) patients in nursing homes, chronic disease hospitals, and comparable places; (d) pregnant women.

If you are in any of these groups, and haven't been vaccinated against flu since 1963, you should have the new vaccine — two injections, a month apart. If you have been immunized since July, 1963, all you need is a single booster of the new vaccine.

The National Tuberculosis Association and your local Christmas Seal organization, dedicated to fighting all respiratory diseases, recommend early action to protect yourself against the oncoming flu threat if you are in one of the vulnerable groups.

When the children and grandchildren become too demanding, remember: one of the best education toys is still real.

OUTDOORS with GORDIE by GORDON CHARLES

What's the daily limit on ducks in Michigan this year? Four? Nine? Eleven?

Depending upon which part of the Oct. 9-Nov. 17 hunting season you were talking about, all of those figures can be correct. The whole thing is wrapped up in selective or "species" shooting.

Under the 1967 duck hunting rules, Michigan hunters are restricted to a basic four ducks per day. Of these four, no more than two may be mallards, nor more than one wood duck or canvasback.

Realizing, however, that most duck hunters tend to pass up mergansers, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service allows five of these to be taken daily, in addition to the four "eating type" ducks. By mergansers, the USFWS means American and red-breasted mergansers. In any case, only one hooded merganser is allowed in the daily bag since these ducks are scarce.

Okay, so that's how we can bag nine legal ducks per day. Now, what about 11?

Beginning Nov. 1 and continuing for the last 17 days of the duck season, three areas of Michigan are open to the taking of two extra scaup or blue-

These include all of the trout waters of Lake Erie, the Saginaw Bay south of a line from Sand Point to Point Au Ren and Muskegon Lake west of Causway Drive.

All of this makes a good prospect for those sportsmen who are not content with the four-duck daily limit. It won't be a lot of difference to the guy normally goes out just on a wing day to bang away at birds, then forgets ducks the next year.

There is no doubt that hunting is the coming trend of the years ahead. The "teal-only" season is a good example. This 9-day season opens Sept. 15 for 1000 holders of special permits but hunting is limited to special areas around the state. The same teal season spect. I hunt for rails and snipe in the teal hunting Sept. 15 also opens a "wood only" season in the northern third of Michigan, during which hunters are being trusted pass up shooting at grouse.

Hunting opportunities are dwindling rapidly for most if it were not for the improvement of species hunting. We can advantage of it and enjoy fine outdoor recreation or can sit back and mourn the loss of "the good old days." Which will you choose?
